

THE LUXURY VOYAGE

Raja Ampat Archipelago

Raja Ampat, situated off the northwest tip of the Bird's Head Peninsula in West Papua, is often hailed as one of the most remarkable environments on Earth.

Its main islands—Misool, Batanta, Waigeo, and Salawati—are surrounded by a labyrinth of 1,500 smaller islands, offering pristine beaches and dramatic limestone cliffs that plunge into crystal-clear waters. Spanning 9.8 million acres of land and sea, Raja Ampat is home to the world's most biodiverse marine ecosystem, with over 1,200 species of fish, 550 species of coral, and six out of the seven species of sea turtles.

Above the water, the cultural heritage is equally rich, featuring prehistoric cave paintings and relics from ancient civilizations. Remnants of more recent history, such as cave bunkers and World War II shipwrecks, can also be found. Adventurous visitors can explore the jungles to spot rare bird species or visit remote villages to experience local traditions.
